The Gravity Locks engage before the worker enters the area, keeping workers out of danger.

The Self-Descending Adjustable High Arch

We have taken one of the most difficult and dangerous products to work with in the shoring industry and made it our simplest and safest to use. The most hazardous part of using the traditional high arch is flipping the trench box during both the assembly and disassembly stage. The GroundWorks High Arch simply lifts together and engages the Gravity Locks before any workers enter the area. To disassemble, a worker unlocks the Gravity Locks at eye level. A machine then picks one side of the trench box, allowing a controlled descent to the ground. This is safely achieved by large internal shock absorbers in the High Arch System.
